I saw a Lift Lifestyle advertisement when looking for some outdoor furniture. I'd just got back from a year's sabbatical and had promised myself to have an outdoor space in Hong Kong to chill out in after a hard day's work.

I have so far purchased a large L-shaped couch, a three-metre large parasol, a matching glass table and a barbecue. These are all nicely arranged on my terrace and have been used extensively in the last few weeks. The table and couch are rattan with dark cream cushions. The style is called Augusta; being a keen golfer, I thought this was the right one – that and the fact that the softer colour matched the surrounds of my terrace.

In terms of choosing the right furniture, Simon and Francis were very helpful and patient on my two visits to their shop. There were numerous changes based on the shape of my terrace, but ultimately, I'm very happy with what I have. My friends also like the terrace very much; in fact, I think some might be a little jealous.

If you do have the luxury of having a nice outdoor space in Hong Kong, then my advice would be to let your imagination run wild – create a perfect area where you can relax. I was able to choose from a wide range of products and got the right ones for me. The main test is whether or not you use them!
